Curú Wildlife Refuge is the protected area in the Nicoya Peninsula where you will find more animals and nature in the same place. The combination of protected area and farm, provides Curú with different ecosystems that can hold a big variety of animals and wildlife. In a 90 minutes hike, you will see plenty animals and plants and our guides will teach you about the sustainable use of land. On the trails you will witness how our company make use of the resources and funds raised with the payment you make every time you make a tour with us. Artificial lagoon, planting trees, organic agriculture, behavior, how local people use plants and natural medicine to cure most of the modern illnesses, local names for plants, animals, culture and future vision, are some of the topics of this nature hike. Other companies hire guides that come from different areas, so the information they transmit is methodic and not 100% accurate, our local guides will show you things base in their experience and knowledge transmitted by their relatives. Learn about the re-introduction projects of scarlet macaws and spider monkeys.
